City, protesters in odd alliance

Members of Occupy Philadelphia met with the city, including Mayor Michael Nutter, yesterday afternoon to discuss plans.

"The meeting was to work together to be peaceful, have everything go really well, be orderly and lawful," said Managing Director Rich Negrin.

He said protesters assured him their intent was not to distract or disrupt people's lives and that they would secure all the proper permits before erecting tents.

"We will do everything we can to maintain some normality in the city," said Police Commissioner Charles Ramsey, who said that police overtime will most likely be needed and costs will increase in proportion to the protest's duration.

Occupy Philly to join homeless at Dilworth

Gloomy plaza west of City Hall already has its own park bench tenants ◐ City official jokes 'they're about to get to know each other'

Members of Occupy Philly plan to gather at City Hall's west side this morning to begin their sleep-in.

Many people already live in Dilworth Plaza, a fact that has not escaped Occupy organizers.

"The homeless are part of the 99 percent. We need them to feel like they are a part of us, because we're a part of them," said outreach coordinator Steve Ross. He said that Occupy has a homeless outreach committee, as well as one that will be responsible for providing food and other supplies for those that sleep there every night.

Occupy has not yet registered as a nonprofit and is thus unable to receive donations, but Ross said that he was confident that, as soon as that changed, contributions would come pouring in to finance provisions. "Salsa Labs have already donated their services to allow us to take online donations."

"We are not going to put anyone out of their home or sleep in anyone's spot," Ross said. "As our budget increases, we hope to be able to provide them a modicum of shelter."

But as of yesterday afternoon, many of Dilworth Plaza's residents had not yet heard about the movement.

"What, the rich are coming to sleep out here?" said Dilworth Plaza resident Steve Turner. "I hope they come bearing gifts for the unfortunate."

He said that protesters would need sleeping bags and strong stomachs, as rats are known to spring from the plaza's concrete walls and crawl over unsuspecting snoozers.

"This is about survival of the fittest, and we've been out here for years," said Frank White. "But as long as they don't try to hurt us, who cares?"

Who will show?

Protesters beginning their occupation of City Hall this morning are joining a national movement started three weeks ago in Lower Manhattan's Financial District.

▶ "I have no idea how many people are going to be there," said organizer Sean Kitchen, adding that the numbers are hard to estimate, with the assembly Tuesday much larger than initally expected. "Based on [Tuesday], we were planning on having 600. However, we were over 1,000."

▶ While the Occupy Together movement takes place across the nation, many college communities also joined in with the Occupy Colleges protest. Members of an estimated 75 campuses agreed to walk out of classes yesterday in solidarity with the protests in New York City. No Philadelphia colleges reported participation.

FISHTOWN. What Brian "Brain" Dwyer hopes will next year become one of Philadelphia's quirkiest attractions, his Pizza Brain museum and eatery, was given zoning approval last week to open for business, according to reports.

Dwyer posted a photo on Facebook of the zoning approval to build the shop at 2313 Frankford Ave. and wrote: "in layman's terms: 'you're legally allowed to start building your pizza museum & restaurant now.'"

Earlier this year, he received an award from Guinness World Records recognizing his collection of pizza memorabilia as the largest in the world.

Downsized paid sick leave back in Council

After Nutter veto, bill now targets city-contracted or city-subsidized businesses Nutter administration still disagrees adamantly with bill

City Council's Commerce and Economic Development Committee approved a bill sponsored by Councilman Wilson Goode, Jr. yesterday that requires city-supported employers to offer paid sick leave despite testimony from the Nutter administration opposing the measure.

Along with municipal agencies, the bill applies to recipients of city leases and concessions — such as new companies that take advantage of tax breaks and other city economic development initiatives.

The city's Chamber of Commerce and Mayor Michael Nutter's administration asserted that the measure would discourage businesses from relocating to Philadelphia.

"The Nutter administration is in agreement with the sponsor that the government needs to be aware of how city workers are treated," said Finance Director Rob Dubow. "But we are opposed to sick leave for all. It's harmful to Philadelphia job creation because of its economic impact."

Dubow said that the bill would serve as one more impediment to attracting development to a city already viewed as having a hostile business climate.

"The administration's testimony was very generalized and simply mirrored the position of the Chamber of Commerce," said Goode, adding that no one was able to provide concrete statistics showing how the initiative would hinder development.

ALEX WIGGLESWORTH
awigglesworth@metro.us

Some more Goode bills

Three other bills sponsored by Goode aimed at increasing transparency and fairness in the city's economic development process were approved by committee.

One would create a new monitoring and enforcement agency to oversee terms of the Living Wage and Benefits law.

Another would require Economic Opportunity Plans to be submitted to Council and posted on the city's website.

The third created regulations for new 10-year tax credit agreements.

The city Office of Economic Opportunity Angela Dow Burton testified in support. METRO

▶ Goode says Nutter officials "have done no due diligence regarding whether the bill has a negative impact."

Today's agenda

Some notable bills on City Council's final passage agenda for its general meeting tomorrow include:

- Councilmen Darrell Clarke, Frank DiCicco and Jim Kenney's controversial satellite legislation, which would ban homeowners and some tenants from putting satellite dishes on the front of homes when an alternative location is available and if the moving the dish doesn't impede signal reception or result in a significant cost to homeowners
- Councilwoman Marian Tasco's bill that was introduced on behalf of Council President Anna Verna, revising the boundaries of Council districts
- Resolution mandating that court fines for witness intimidation must be paid into a special fund to be used for witness and victim assistance

Months of work for Norristown line

Rain-ravaged high-speed line still needs millions in repairs SEPTA general manager issued Web apology

SEPTA said yesterday it will likely take two more months to complete repairs on the Norristown High Speed Line, which has had service restrictions since flooding in early September.

The record rainfall in August combined with Tropical Storm Lee weakened the soil on part of the line, which runs between 69th Street Terminal in Upper Darby to Norristown. Boarding between Radnor and Bryn Mawr has been restricted to the outbound platform for both directions, causing delays and crowded trains for thousands of passengers.

A $2.3 million contract has been awarded to Allan A. Meyers Inc., a Worcester firm, to install a retaining wall with deep foundations for the 40-foot-high embankment, officials said. Service should not be disrupted during construction, and General Manager Joseph Casey issued a written apology to riders on the agency's website.

▶ Casey

"This is a very difficult location and a very complex project that we're pushing forward very quickly," SEPTA's chief engineer Jeff Knueppel explained yesterday. "We understand the inconvenience to our riders, and we're doing everything we can to get this fixed quickly."

Knueppel said the repair is complicated by the fact that workers have to build an access road to the site and that the damage is right near a PECO power line. He said the rest of the line has been inspected and deemed safe.

Quiet first meeting for new SRC

CENTER CITY. The Philadelphia School Reform Commission held a peaceful meeting yesterday in its first public appearance since two members resigned last month in a cloud of controversy.

Wendell Pritchett, the Commission's newest appointee by Mayor Michael Nutter, presided over the two-hour meeting after being named the acting chairman by Gov. Tom Corbett earlier in the day. He replaces former chairman Robert Archie and commissioner Johnny Irizarry, who left following the messy departure of Arlene Ackerman.

Archie is also accused of aiding state Rep. Dwight Evans in attempts to steer the district to select an operator for Martin Luther King Jr. High School.

Steve Jobs logs off, age 56

Apple co-founder loses battle with cancer Built up one of the world's most beloved and valued corporations

Steve Jobs, the co-founder and former CEO of Apple, has died, the company announced late last night. He was 56.

"Apple has lost a visionary and creative genius, and the world has lost an amazing human being," a statement from Apple read. "Those of us who have been fortunate enough to know and work with Steve have lost a dear friend and an inspiring mentor. Steve leaves behind a company that only he could have built, and his spirit will forever be the foundation of Apple."

Jobs co-founded the computer, media and electronics giant with Steve Wozniak in 1976 but left eight years later, returning in 1996 to reinvigorate Apple and bring about a string of successful innovations, including the iMac personal computer, the iPod, the iPhone and the iPad.

Quoted

"Steve's brilliance, passion and energy were the source of countless innovations that enrich and improve all of our lives. The world is immeasurably better because of Steve." APPLE INC.

With his health a matter of public concern for years, Jobs underwent surgery for pancreatic cancer in 2004. After leaves of absence for medical reasons in 2009 — during which he received a liver transplant — and earlier this year, Jobs officially resigned on Aug. 24, stating in a letter at the time that he could "no longer meet [his] duties and expectations as Apple's CEO."

"His greatest love was for his wife, Laurene, and his family," an Apple, Inc. statement read. "Our hearts go out to them and to all who were touched by his extraordinary gifts."

Newest Dem proposal: Tax the rich to pay bill

U.S. millionaires would be hit with a new 5 percent surtax to pay for President Barack Obama's $447 billion jobs program under a new funding plan unveiled yesterday by his fellow Democrats in the Senate.

Senate Democratic Leader Harry Reid said he aims to hold votes within days on Obama's proposal, which Republicans have denounced as a political gimmick that they will block.

The anticipated gridlock would underscore the inability of Congress to address the country's 9.1 percent unemployment rate. The weak economy will be the key issue in the 2012 congressional and presidential elections.

Under the proposal, the surtax would apply to all income over $1 million, including capital gains and dividends. It would take effect on January 1, 2012.

While Republicans have denounced tax hikes as a nonstarter, saying they would stunt economic growth, Reid cited studies that Obama's plan would create jobs with a mixture of stimulus spending and tax cuts largely for the middle class and small businesses.

It was Obama who originally proposed the millionaire tax when he unveiled his jobs creation plan before Congress last month. Obama called the tax the "Buffett Rule," named after billionaire investor Warren Buffett. REUTERS

President's plan

Senator Charles Schumer, a member of Democratic leadership, said the permanent tax on those earning more than a million dollars a year would pay for the whole of Obama's jobs plan.

▶ "We need enough money to pay for this, and doing the 5 percent surcharge ... comes out just about exactly paying for it," he said.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. The Rev. Fred Shuttlesworth, a major leader in the civil rights movement who was beaten, bombed and injured by fire hoses, died in Birmingham yesterday at age 89.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

There is no stopping skinny girl Bethenny Frankel

Bethenny Frankel is very, very rich.

Bethenny Frankel has never been shy about admitting her ambition.

The 40-year-old climbed the reality TV show ladder, starting with "The Apprentice: Martha Stewart" in 2005, and then was cast on "The Real Housewives of New York City" in 2008 even though, as a struggling single chef, she didn't really fit the "rich housewife" profile. From "RHONYC," her star — and brand — rose. And this year, she was able to sell her Skinnygirl Margarita cocktail mix for a whopping $120 million dollars.

Thanks to that huge sale, she's one of the top female earners in the entertainment world, according to Forbes.com. They list her at No. 3 with a worth of $55 million (between May 2010 to May 2011). Oprah Winfrey remained No. 1 on with $290 million in earnings; Lady Gaga came in second with $90 million. Forbes notes that Frankel is trying to expand her brand with food, supplements and a possible talk show. Gisele Bundchen, Taylor Swift, Ellen DeGeneres and Judge Judy Sheindlin each earned $45 million last year and tied for fourth place.

Maybe, in the end, reality TV does pay?

Pattinson tops Glamour's sexiest list

It looks like Glamour readers are huge "Twilight" fans. Robert Pattinson topped the mag's list of the world's sexiest men, with his "Twilight" co-star Taylor Lautner coming in second. "Over 40,000 Glamour readers cast their votes in the most hotly contested list of the year," says editor Jo Elvin. "And while the 'Twilight' saga men continue to dominate our Sexiest Men list, Glamour readers have shown they have eclectic tastes to say the least — from silver fox, 50-year-old George Clooney, to a barely legal Justin Bieber." Also on this list: Bradley Cooper, Gerard Butler, Alex Pettyfer and Ryan Reynolds.

Talking points

Seyfried wants fame-free boyfriends

Amanda Seyfried

While she remembers her relationship with Dominic Cooper fondly, Amanda Seyfried says dating Ryan Phillippe has put her off dating other celebrities. "Dominic and I were together for such a long time, so the coverage was always positive, but when you've just started seeing someone and that person is really famous, it's more of a story," the actress tells Glamour magazine. "When I was with Ryan, people followed me so much more, and that's probably one of the reasons that I'm not looking to date someone who's famous now."

Arquette keeps talking about dead marriage

While David Arquette and Courteney Cox have remained close throughout their yearlong separation, a rekindling of their marriage doesn't seem likely, Arquette admits to Access Hollywood. "We're pretty much in the friend zone," he says. "Though we love each other and we love to laugh and have a great time, it's difficult." And the state of their relationship isn't something either has hidden from their 7-year-old daughter, Coco. "Kids know everything — they know a lot. They feel it, they sense it," Arquette explains. "I was really honest with her throughout the whole experience. There's not much we don't communicate about."

Depp wants you to take that camera away

Johnny Depp is not a fan of getting his picture taken. In fact, he tells Vanity Fair that when it comes to photo shoots, "You just feel like you're being raped somehow. Raped. The whole thing. It feels like a kind of weird — just weird, man. Whenever you have a photo shoot or something like that, it's like — you just feel dumb. It's just so stupid." But Depp, who's made a fortune from the "Pirates of the Caribbean" movies, isn't so much afraid of stupid things, including stupid salaries. "If they're going to pay me the stupid money right now, I'm going to take it," he says of some of his film roles. "I have to. I mean, it's not for me. Do you know what I mean?"

5 Movies to catch this weekend

2 'Ides of March' George Clooney directs and stars in this political thriller based on the Broadway play "Farragut North" about an ambitious political strategist (Ryan Gosling) who finds his integrity challenged by a cynical political world during the Democratic primaries. Backs will be stabbed — very nice-looking backs, at that.

3 '50/50' We're not sure that audiences will be breaking down the doors trying to get in to see a comedy about a 27-year-old man coping with spinal cancer, but if Seth Rogen's showing up to the party as his best friend, maybe everyone else will join in.

4 'What's Your Number?' Anna Faris' city girl learns from a magazine article that the more people she's slept with, the less likely it is she'll find love. She goes on a mission to reconnect with every ex she's ever had in order to settle down.

5 'Dream House' Real-life newlyweds Rachel Weisz and Daniel Craig bring their believable sizzle to this haunted-house thriller.

1 'Real Steel' A movie about boxing robots sounds something a couple of studio executives came up with after a few too many. But yes, it's real, and Hugh Jackman is starring in it. Not only will robots box, but one particularly downtrodden robot boxer will be rehabilitated by a down-on-his-luck promoter (Jackman).

iPhone 4S, contracts and Siri: Everything you need to know

Get the details on what you can expect next from Apple • How the iPhone 4S differs from the iPhone 4

SARAH KESSLER FOR Mashable
The Social Media Guide

Apple gathered the world's tech press at its headquarters in Cupertino to announce its latest products this week. Here's a handy summary of what's new:

▶ The iPhone 4S looks almost exactly like the iPhone 4, but has a better camera and, according to Apple Vice President Phil Schiller, runs "up to seven times faster" than its predecessor. The phone will cost $199 for a 16 GB model and $299 for a 32 GB model. It will be available for pre-order on Oct. 7 and start shipping Oct. 14.

▶ Siri, a new iPhone 4S feature, is voice activation on steroids. Because it is capable of parsing natural human language, it can respond to a question such as "What is the weather like today?" with an answer it finds online, such as a weather report. It can read messages, search Wikipedia, make a calendar appointment, set a reminder, search Google Maps and more.

▶ Apple is giving away its 8 GB iPhone 3G — with strings attached. The free phone comes with a new two-year contract. You'll also be able to purchase the iPhone 4 for $99 with the same contract. Both pricing options will go into effect when Apple releases the 4S on Oct. 14.

▶ Sprint is getting the iPhone 4S. Becoming the third carrier to offer the iPhone is a big bet for Sprint, which has reportedly agreed to purchase $20 billion in iPhones regardless of whether or not it can sell them.

▶ The new iPod Nano has watch-like features and bigger app icons.

Paris Fashion Week

Louis Vuitton

Showing that he has what it takes to fill Galliano's shoes at Dior, Marc Jacobs created a stellar production to serve as a backdrop for his expertly crafted clothes. Always a directional force, he took a completely different approach to spring after last season's sexed up vamps and kinky boots. Instead, he sent out girly girls dressed in pastel-colored lace confections who posed and preened on a massive merry-go-round. But these women in shades of lemon drop, cotton candy and baby blue were anything but saccharine, flashing the tiniest decorated briefs under their lady-like coats. The collection seemed to be the exclamation point on the soft and sweet moment that has emerged from Paris, with other houses such as Givenchy and Chanel showing subversive takes on staples of feminine dressing.

Louis Vuitton

Valentino

Valentino

To the uninitiated, Paris Fashion Week can look like a blur of complex clothes that only make sense in fashion magazines. But the Valentino show was one of those rare moments that can appeal to just about anyone, from the most commercial red carpet-lovers to the most advanced avant-garde types. (Witness the front row, which included mainstream celebs Jessica Biel and Ciara along with insider "It" girl Alexa Chung). According to the press notes, designers Grazia Chiuri and Pierpaolo Piccioli wanted to create an "expression of pure aesthetic pleasure." And they succeeded. The collection was all eye candy — 55 pretty looks centered around lace, which was used in knee-length cotton shift dresses; leather, halter-neck frocks; billowing button-down blouse and dramatic gowns.

Stuck in the middle, again

Last year the extremist wing of the Republican Party gave us the Tea Baggers. Now the radical wing of the Democratic Party has responded with the Occupy Wall Streeters. The yang has balanced out the yin, but the 80 percent of us in the middle are still stuck listening to the fringes.

CARL HANSON, VIA E-MAIL

Credit card fees are class war

Why isn't anyone talking about the usurious credit card interest rates? The banks, financed by government bailout loans, are making a fortune on the misfortunes of the struggling masses. The rich do not have these bills, only the struggling multitudes. Take your heads out of the air, friends, and vote to take their hands out of our pockets.

STAN THOMPSON, VIA E-MAIL

Media loves communists

The Occupy protestors are communists and traitors! The liberal bias of the mainstream media is on full display as they fawn over the radical left wing Occupy Wall Street and similar spinoff rallies. These rallies are festering with people who openly despise America, and are quite candid in their wanting to see the collapse of capitalism. The same liberal mainstream media giving full coverage and praise of what are essentially communist gatherings did nothing but vilify the Tea Party gatherings. The Tea Party protesters are the real Americans, and they are the ones who have a genuine love for this country. Many of the protestors are idiotic college kids who don't know squat about the way the world works; but the people backing them are the traitors to America, and they need to be arrested.

CHARLES STEPHENSON, VIA E-MAIL

Main street media needs to tell it like it really is: A communist rally — evidenced by the backing in the media and Internet of Van Jones and Frances Piven (among others), both self-proclaimed communists. How about these protesters going to union headquarters and asking how much the union leaders earn on the backs of the workers dues for their own personal and political gains? These protesters are sheep being used and led by the radical, far-left organizations — 1939 Germany, here we come!

Horoscope

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Today's events could turn out to be rather beneficial for you, especially if you have plans with someone who has proved lucky for you in the past.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Because certain breaks could be coming your way, devote your time and energies toward fulfilling a tough ambition of yours. It'll help if you keep what you're doing to yourself.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Utilize any special knowledge or expertise you've acquired that could benefit you as well as special friends who are involved with you in a project. Something positive will come of it.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. The excellent impression you'll make on everyone you come in contact with will be both favorable and lasting. Where you'll really shine is in one-on-one relationships.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Lady Luck will do her best to help you develop some new channels to achieve your needs as well as your wants. Don't coast, however, because she may not stick around very long.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. The quickest way to be successful is to put your interests second. When you do what you believe to be best for everyone else, you feather your own nest as well.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. If you work from a structured agenda and do the toughest jobs first, you'll be amazed at how well things will turn out for you and how pleased you'll be with your accomplishments.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Adopting an optimistic attitude and demeanor could be extremely effective in enhancing your popularity with the opposite gender. Put it to the test.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. An extremely tough matter can be put to rest if you make it your priority to do so. Whenever you're dealing with something of this ilk, know that it cannot be done in bits and pieces.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Although you may be comfortable with certain ideas, there is a good chance they'll appear to be a bit too grandiose for others. The reason: You'll be using different methods of measurement.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Because your material prospects look exceptionally good, don't put off until tomorrow what you can easily take care of now. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

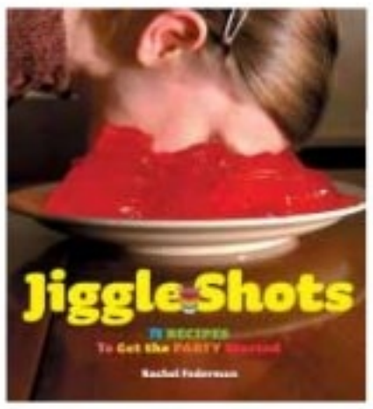
When was the last time you did a Jell-O shot? College, you say? That's about to change with the new book, 'Jiggle Shots'

THEY'RE ALIVE!



CONTRIBUTED

Jell-O shots — much like their corrupted dessert cousins, special brownies — usually only surface on college campuses.

But Rachel Federman suspects that the kitschy cocktails still have a place in your sticky little heart. Her new book, "Jiggle Shots," features 75 playful recipes — from almost-sophisticated bellinis and mimosas to drunken Gummy Bears suspended in grain alcohol.

But before you start slurping, consider a utensil this time around. "I always thought the whole idea was to scrunch the cup and gracefully pop a Jell-O shot into your mouth while winking at some intriguing stranger across the room," says Federman. "But it's really too much for one bite, and the whole fun is how good they taste, so I recommend a spoon."

▶ Celebrating the fall harvest? The Whiskey in the Jar jiggle shot (recipe at right) is all down-home goodness.

Make your own:

Whiskey in the Jar jiggle shot

What you need

- 1 ounce fresh lemon juice
- 6 ounces chilled whiskey
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin (¼ ounce each)
- 1 cup lemonade, heated

How to make it

Mix the lemon juice and whiskey, add gelatin and let sit for a few minutes. Add heated lemonade, stir and pour into mason jars. Place the jars in the fridge to set.

Audrey Claire Taichman didn't really need another reason to spend more time on her little nook of South 20th Street. Between Audrey Claire and Twenty Manning Grill — her two neighborhood mainstays — she's there plenty, thank you. But her latest venture into the Philly culinary scene, COOK, allows her to experience a whole other side of the restaurant biz.

"After 15 years of hard restaurant work, while this is a lot of work, it's so much fun," she says of her new demonstration kitchen and boutique, which opened last month. "I feel so privileged to hear another chef teach and watch the guests appreciate what we do."

A 16-seat kitchen classroom, COOK hosts everything from celebrity chefs to children's classes, with a simple unifying mission: Get messy, and then get together and enjoy a delicious meal.

If you have a discerning sweet tooth, chances are you've already met pastry chef Adriane Appleby's high-profile confections. After leaving Jose Garces' Amada, she went on to bake Those Cupcakes at G-Ho darling Betty's Speakeasy. Now, she's sharing her secrets with a series of baking classes out of West Philly's Green Line Cafe (43rd St. and Baltimore Ave.)."I really like the nerdy, technical side of baking," says Appleby, who will be teaching classes for both fellow pros and casual home chefs interested in stepping up their holiday baking game. "But there will, of course, be classes where we learn how to decorate sugar cookies."

This comedy of two very different pairs of lovers has been delighting audiences for centuries. Claudio and Hero are starry-eyed while Beatrice and Benedick bicker and banter and seem to reject love and romance all together. But, of course, there is a twist. Stockton's talented student director takes a fresh approach in this production, bridging the gap between classical theater and the contemporary world.

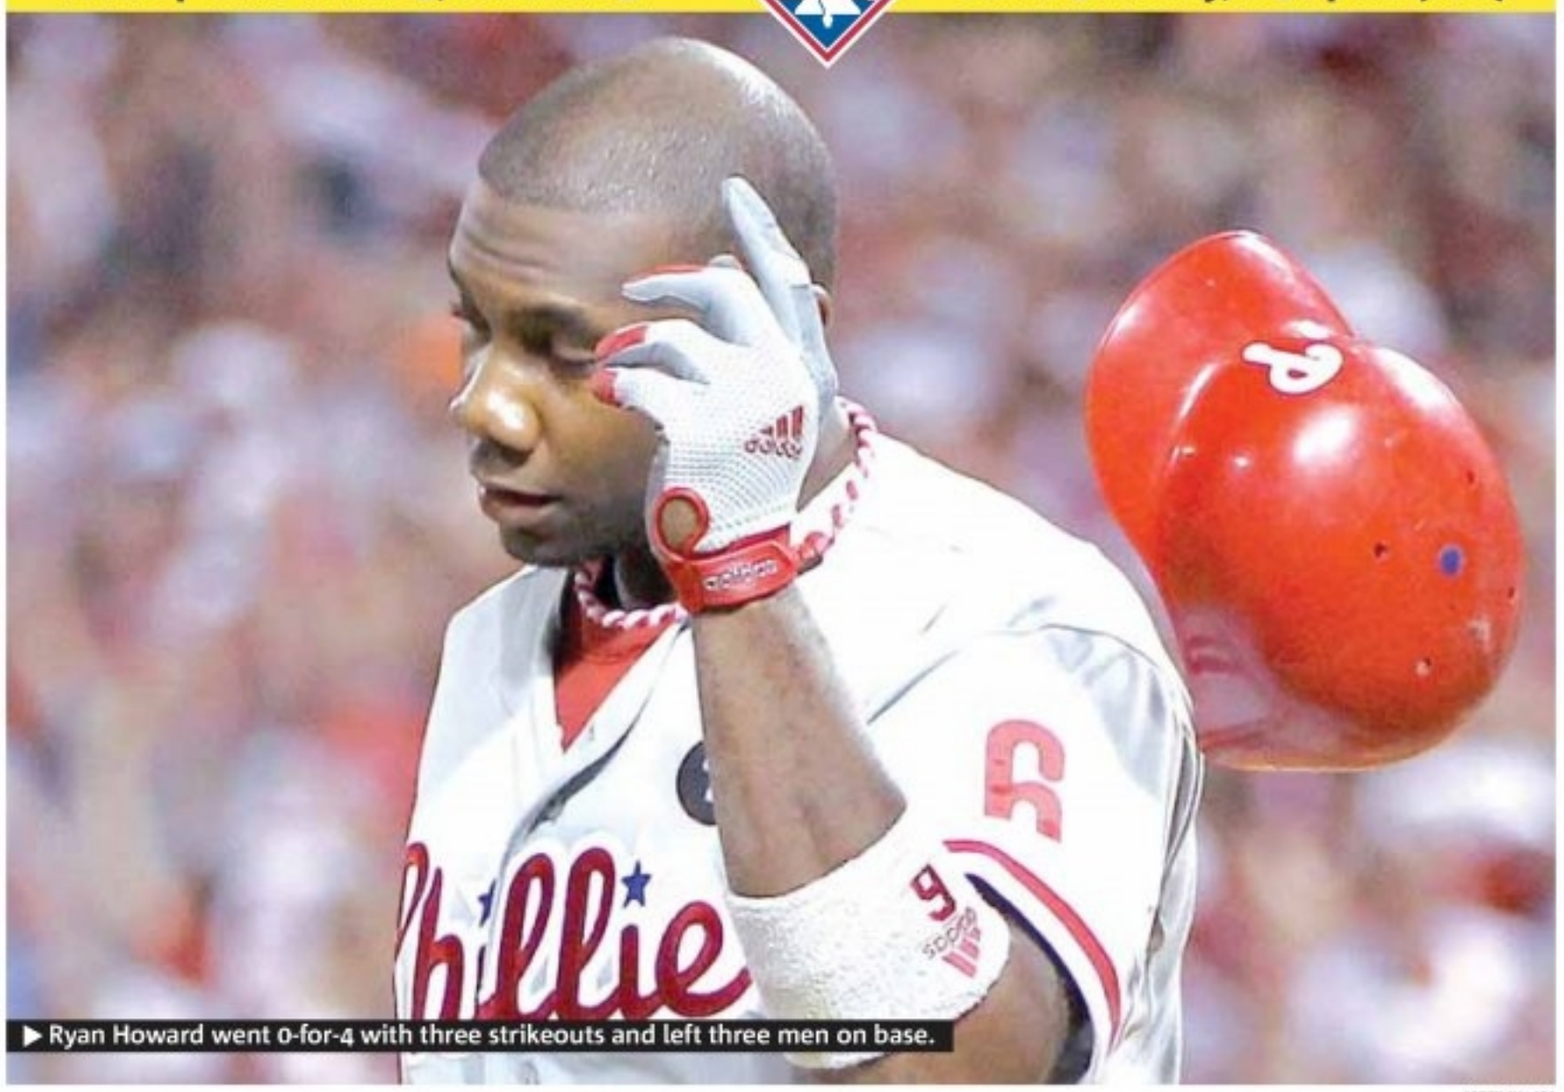
NLDS | CARDINALS 5, PHILLIES 3

Game 5: Friday, 8:30 p.m. (TBS)



▶ Ryan Howard went 0-for-4 with three strikeouts and left three men on base.

GETTY IMAGES

BUSCH WHACKED

Oswalt gives up five runs, picks up first playoff loss (as starter) ◐ Cards bullpen, Jackson slow Phillies offense ◐ Halladay takes mound in Game 5

David Freese knocked in four of the Cardinals' five runs with a double and home run off Phillies starter Roy Oswalt, and St. Louis starter Edwin Jackson recovered from a shaky start to pitch six strong innings, propelling St. Louis to a 5-3 victory.

Jackson was in trouble early, after Jimmy Rollins led off with a double that Jon Jay appeared to lose in the sun. Chase Utley's triple made it 1-0 before there was an out on the board. Hunter Pence singled Utley home, but that was all the Phils would get against Jackson in the first.

Quoted

"Everything's sitting right there for us, we got to go get it. ... That's why we worked like hell to get the home field advantage."
CHARLIE MANUEL, ON GAME 5

Ryan Howard struck out looking and Pence was caught stealing second, although second-base umpire Chad Fairchild appeared to have missed the call. Coincidence or not, it sent the Phillies into an offensive funk, similar to the one they faced in the final seven innings of Game 2 and the first six of Game 3.

Jackson retired 17 of the next 20 batters he faced before Arthur Rhodes replaced him in the seventh. The Phillies scored a run in the eighth and had a runner on second with one out, but Pence grounded out and Howard struck out swinging on three pitches.

Oswalt, who had never lost in 10 postseason starts, allowed a run in the first inning and two runs in the fourth to hand the Cardinals a 3-2 lead. Oswalt walked Lance Berkman and hit Matt Holliday with a pitch, before Freese doubled into the left-field corner to score both runners.

Freese got to Oswalt one more time in the sixth, when he crushed a two-run, home run to center field to make it 5-2.

BRUCE WELLS
sports@metro.us

Game 4

NLDS TIED, 2-2

Three things we saw at the park

▶ WP: E. Jackson (1-0)
LP: Roy Oswalt (0-1)

1 Start me up. The Phillies' double-play combination of Chase Utley and Jimmy Rollins has been taking advantage of their improved health. Rollins came within a foot or so of hitting two home runs in Game 2 and is 9-for-16 with four doubles in the series. Utley has reached base nine times in the first four games, twice on doubles and once on a triple.

2 History lesson. Ben Francisco's pinch-hit home run in Game 3 was the first for Philadelphia since 2008. The previous five pinch-hit homers in Phillies postseason history: Eric Bruntlett, 2008 World Series; Matt Stairs, 2008 NLCS; George Vukovich, 1981 NLDS; Bake McBride, 1978 NLCS; Jerry Martin 1978 NLCS.

3 Feeling squirrelly? With the score 3-2 in favor of St. Louis, a squirrel, the same kind of critter who dashed across the field Tuesday, made its return in the fifth inning, racing from the first-base dugout and running past home plate while Roy Oswalt delivered a pitch to Skip Schumaker. Oswalt raised his hands in protest that the pitch should have been called a strike as the squirrel darted into the stands looking for a peanut vendor.

BRUCE WELLS

He said it

"Being from the South ... if I'd had a gun there, I might have been able to do something about it."
CHARLIE MANUEL, ON THE SQUIRREL INCIDENT

Halladay vs. Carpenter

You kind of get the feeling he wouldn't want it any other way.

Roy Halladay will take the mound for the Phillies in Game 5 of their NLDS against the Cardinals. St. Louis will counter with its own ace, Chris Carpenter.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Doc

"That would be the experience of a lifetime for any of us," Cards skipper Tony La Russa said.

The Cards got to Halladay early in Game 1, before the reigning NL Cy Young winner settled in and retired 21 straight batters. He's 3-1 with a 2.70 ERA in four career playoff starts, including a no-hitter.

Carpenter, who is 5-2 (3.38) in 10 playoff starts, was teammates with Halladay in Toronto for two seasons (1998-99). METRO

Empty slate as new-look Flyers start 2011 season

The name tags seem to be working.

If the preseason is any indication what to expect from the Flyers once the games start for real, then this might really work.

Not only will program sales be brisk, but all the new guys wearing those orange-and-black jerseys — speedy wingers Jakub Voracek and Wayne Simmonds, explosive rookies Sean Couturier and Matt Read, dynamic goaltender Ilya Bryzgalov — might actually fill them better than the ones who have left.

On TV today

Flyers at Bruins, 7 p.m. (VERSUS)

And that doesn't even include the most intriguing new piece of all — longtime nemesis turned Philly cult hero, Jaromir Jagr.

"We're still a new team with a different look from last year," said leading-scorer Claude Giroux (76 points). "Right now, we're playing well and working hard. I think if we keep working hard like that all season it's going to be a pretty good start."

But it's not the start that Flyers' fans really care about. It's the finish.

Peter Laviolette's team has fallen to the eventual Cup champions in the past two seasons, leading the organization to make wholesale changes. Add that to a sturdy defense led by new captain Chris Pronger and Kimmo Timonen — along with holdover forwards Danny Briere, Scott Hartnell and James van Riemsdyk — and hopes are high for a memorable season.

RIKARD LARMA/METRO

▶ Can Pronger lead the team to the finish they crave?

How memorable?

"It's pretty much an empty slate," said Pronger. "We need to get acclimated with one another, so that we can kind of get on a roll and really start to form that bond that you need in the later months."

Flyers opener

Questions to ponder as season begins ...

1 What is left in Jagr's tank? Back in the NHL for the first time since 2008, 39-year-old Jaromir Jagr has been a preseason sensation, scoring four goals in three games. When it counts, though, Jagr cautions not to expect too much. But it's hard not to believe he's going to make a huge difference on the power play and also be valuable in shootouts, where the Flyers have traditionally struggled. Plus, he knows what it takes to win.

2 Will the old blue line hold up? Chris Pronger's voice may now carry more weight in the locker room as captain, but if he can't make his presence felt on the ice, the Flyers are a lot more vulnerable. Kimmo Timonen (36) played every game, but clearly labored in the postseason trying to pick up the slack for Pronger's absence. While the rest of the D — Braydon Coburn, Andres Meszaros, Matt Carle and newcomer Andreas Lilja — is solid, they still need the old guard to do their thing.

3 Is Bryzgalov the missing link? The Flyers are banking nine years and $51 million that Ilya Bryzgalov is the answer to their ongoing goal-tending prayers. After watching Tim Thomas almost single-handedly lead the Bruins to the Cup, they've vowed to never again leave the position undermanned. For his part, the personable Russian import has warmed to the occasion, saying all the right things. Now there's another question: Can Bryzgalov stop the puck when the playoffs heat up?

4 Can the kids handle the load? One of the reasons the Flyers traded Mike Richards and Jeff Carter was to get younger. But can Brayden Schenn, who won't start the season with the team, No. 1 draft pick Sean Couturier and/or preseason standout Matt Read make a difference now? The Flyers don't want to put undue pressure on any of them, but all those deals removed more than 100 goals from the lineup. Somebody needs to help fill that void.

No plans to watch Bruins celebrate

Flyers not thrilled to watch Boston raise Stanley Cup banner But they'll use it as motivation to win

It wasn't enough that the Flyers were swept out of the second round of the playoffs by the Boston Bruins, and then had to sit around and watch them win the Stanley Cup.

Now they have to be in the house when Boston raises its championship banner tonight to start the season. Obviously, that's not sitting well.

"When the NHL schedule came out, I was obviously not too happy about it," said Claude Giroux (76 points), who will probably be on a line with newcomer Jaromir Jagr. "But hopefully it can be motivation for the boys. I don't want to watch it, especially when they kicked us out. I don't want to see another team raise that banner."

From Boston, the Flyers head North to face the New Jersey Devils on Saturday. Then, the Flyers return home to take on the team the Bruins beat to clinch the Cup — the Vancouver Canucks — in the home opener next Wednesday.

Research Sleep Study

Teenagers between the ages of 12 and 16 are needed for a study that will help us better understand sleep in adolescents. Your child does not need to have sleep problems to be included in this study. Teenagers of average weight and overweight teenagers can be included.

The study involves two nights in the sleep lab, MRI and a breathing test.
During this study, nothing will hurt your child and no needles will be used. A parent must stay with the child overnight.

We offer reimbursement for expenses.
